Photos Are Critical to Hotel Bookings

Aerial photos are critically important for hotel reservations. They help travelers check the hotel's exact location, nearby noise sources, beach access, and surrounding area. They let you see the real layout better than standard promotional photos.

Research shows that roughly 60% to 80% of travelers consider images the most vital factor when choosing where to stay. Visuals build trust, set expectations, and drive engagement; listings with 20 or more photos see up to 150% more interaction than those with only a few.
